Use Jet Buzz-Bomb For Landing Craft

New Twin Fuselage Fighter Plane Is Announced.

LOS ANGELES — Development of a jet-propelled buzz bomb that could be used aboard landing craft and of a two-fuselage military fighter with a range of 2,500 miles was announced recently by two aircraft firms.

Northrop Aircraft described its buzz bomb as a single jet creation with a 36-foot wingspread, much like a small fighter in appearance, and revealed that it has been making such bombs for the army since the summer of 1944.

Designated the JBI-A, it succeeds a twin-jet machine which Northrop built first for the army, patterned after its flying wing.

The company's announcement was made at a news conference where the army used the bomb.

Improvements to the launching platform cut the length of the tracks to 50 feet, capable of installation on an LST. The backbone of each launching sled is a 14-foot aluminum tube with the bomb resting on cradles within the tube. It is catapulted into the air at 220 miles an hour with the aid of four rockets.

In contrast to the earlier twin-jet craft, which carried its bombs on either side of the engine, the JBI-A's explosives are in magnesium cast housings within the wing on either side of the fuselage.

North American Aviation made public details of its P-42 twin Mustang—latest in the series of Mustang fighters which saw action on many war fronts. The company said the P-42 will replace the P-51H on production lines.

The new craft houses a pilot in each fuselage, and, North American's statement says, culminates five years of research. It has a 2,500-mile combat range, carrying full armament. Two 2,200-horsepower, 12-cylinder engines give it speeds in excess of 475 miles an hour, the company added, with efficient operation up to 45,000 feet.

Armament includes six .50-caliber machine guns, 25 rockets— which the company asserted provide the fire power of a light cruiser broad-side—and 4,000-pound bombs. By use of adapters, however, two of the bomb racks can carry 2,000-pounders.

Disability Claims Increase Rapidly

Existing Backlog Seen as Delay for Many.

WASHINGTON — The Veterans administration said recently that it was handling disability claims faster than ever before, but that claims were increasing even faster.

The result, the agency said, is a backlog of 200,000 claims for disability pensions. That backlog means delay for many applicants.

VA's disposition of claims has jumped from 3,000 cases a month in 1942 to a record 122,007 in October.
But claims in October climbed to 178,321 — also a record — meaning that VA lost ground rather than gained.

The agency anticipates a load of 200,000 pension claims per month for the next year. Before V-E Day the average was 10,000 a month.

In an effort to keep pace and whittle the backlog VA said it was deferring further examinations of men already receiving pensions and is recruiting full and part-time medical service.

It has also, at least temporarily, a new disability rating schedule that was to have become effective October 1 and required extensive re-examination of hundreds of thousands of veterans.

So far 1,387,241 Second World War veterans have asked for disability benefits within the wing on either side of the fuselage.

This Explains How Not
To Buy Postage Stamps
CHRYSTEN, WYO. — Next time a Cheyenne business man gives his secretary money with which to buy stamps, he's going to be more explicit in his directions. He handed his secretary a $30 check and told her to buy some stamps.

She addressed an envelope to the local postmaster, put the check in it and sent the letter on its way with nothing in it but the check.
She explained later that she thought the postmaster "would know what to do with it and we'd get the stamps."

Even in midsummer, the park officials were beginning to be optimistic about the 1946 period. But what happened with the end of the war and gasoline rationing caused them to revise their calculations hastily upward.

In some areas, travel during the latter part of the park season jumped to around 400 per cent over the same 1944 period.

In all, visitors to the 100 areas in the national park system during the calendar year ended September 30 numbered 10,600,000, an increase of 2,114,228 over the 1944 travel year.

"We expect park travel next year to equal, if not exceed the banner year of 1941, when some 21 million visitors were recorded," Associate Director A. E. Demaray of the park service said here.

Big Dirigibles May Pump

Ballast From the Ocean
CLEVELAND — Huge transoceanic dirigibles of the future may be able to pump ballast from the ocean while traveling at top speed high above the water, says Navy Capt. C. V. S. Knox of the Goodyear Aircraft corporation.

Hydrogen-filled dirigibles have been equipped to "baffle" out enough gas to counteract the loss of weight of fuel consumption, but the helium in American airships has been too valuable to discharge, he said.

"Blimp" has been cruising over Lake Erie for several weeks taking on ballast via an electric pump inclosed in a torpedo shaped "fish" trailing in the water. The experiments have been successful, he said.
